December Designer.

The Christmas number of The De eigner is unusually attractive. Its fash ion department illustrates and describes millinery, and under "Points on Dressmaking" is furnished most useful in struction for the making of juvenile garments. A Christmas Cantata by Frederic Van Rensselaer Dey, entitled "Santa Claus' Busy Day," is given prominent place among the literay features, and Christmas poems are supplied by Cora A. Matson Doison, Francis H. Tabor, Frank Farrington and Florence Gertrude Ruthven. John De Morgan paper on Christmas customs and super stitions. Olive C. Tobey is the author of a story for adults, "From the Peyton Letters," while Alice Josephine Johnson writes the Christmas story for juveniles, en'itled "What a Christmas Glove Brought." "When Christmas Comes" is the name of a contribution in which numerous dainty and pretty suggestions for gifts are pictured. "Selections for season, and "Hints for the Holidays" gives some unique ideas for the distribution of presents An attractive feature which the children will appreciate ternational Christmas Party," by Bertha Reveral strong chun Kirk, are given this month, and the pages "What Women are Doing" grow
